

I am concerned about media consolidation and urge you to retain, enforce, and strengthen regulations that restrict ownership of multiple TV/radio stations. Other businesses are regulated by anti-trust legislation to protect people, and a monopoly on the sources of information that shape most people's views of the world is far more dangerous than a monopoly that would overcharge for phone service or the like. The consolidation of radio ownership has already caused problems, from breakdowns in local coverage to mass censorship of anti-war music. Protect democracy and do your job--maintain essential regulations on media ownership.
